

The Lincoln-Douglas Debates of 1858

This is a reproduction of a book published before 1923. This book may have occasional imperfections such as missing or blurred pages, poor pictures, errant marks, etc. that were either part of the original artifact, or were introduced by the scanning process. We believe this work is culturally important, and despite the imperfections, have elected to bring it back into print as part of our continuing commitment to the preservation of printed works worldwide. We appreciate your understanding of the imperfections in the preservation process, and hope you enjoy this valuable book.

The Lincoln-Douglas debates (also known as The Great Debates of 1858) were a series of seven debates between Abraham Lincoln, the Republican candidate for the United States Senate from Illinois, and incumbent Senator Stephen Douglas, the Democratic Party candidate. To celebrate the 150th anniversary of the most famous political argument in U.S. history, The Lincoln-Douglas Debates of 1858 is now available in a special edition. The 1858 debates reframed America's argument about slavery and transformed Lincoln into a presidential contender. THE GREAT DEBATE AT OTTAWA. The first grand encounter between the champions of Slavery and Freedom, Douglas and Lincoln, takes place in the 7th and final debate between Senatorial candidates Abraham Lincoln and Stephen Douglas was held on October 15, 1858, in Alton, Illinois. Today bronze The book The Complete Lincoln-Douglas Debates of 1858, Abraham Lincoln and Stephen A. Douglas is published by University of Chicago Press. - 14 min - Uploaded by Abolition News Network The most well known series of political debates in U.S. history occurred between Aug-Oct 1858 Although the Lincoln-Douglas debates occurred in 1858, the debates are still well known and regarded by historians as important political moments in history. To the Editor: Congress: A Matter of Measurement (Washington Talk page, April 20) errs on the 1858 Lincoln-Douglas debates. Douglas From whose perspective? In the short term political perspective the Little Giant won as it was a Senatorial debate, even given that Senators were appointed not Lincoln-Douglas debates. Lincoln-Douglas debates, series of seven debates between the Democratic senator Stephen A. Douglas and Republican challenger Abraham Lincoln during the 1858 Illinois senatorial campaign, largely concerning the issue of slavery extension into the territories. Students will examine the transcripts of the 1858 Lincoln-Douglas debates and create a platform for each candidate in the 1858 Senate race. Students will utilize In the Lincoln-Douglas Debates, Abraham Lincoln and Stephen Douglas argued about slavery. The Lincoln-Douglas Debates were held in Illinois in 1858. The Lincoln-Douglas Debates of 1858. The Lincoln-Douglas debates were a series of formal political debates between the challenger, Abraham Lincoln, and the incumbent, Stephen A. Douglas, in a campaign for one of Illinois two United States Senate seats. Lincoln Douglas Debates summary: The Lincoln-Douglas Debates of 1858 were a series of seven debates between Abraham Lincoln, the Republican - 7 min - Uploaded by Abraham Lincoln Presidential Library and Museum What's the story of the Lincoln-Douglas debates? Did Abraham Lincoln win or did Stephen - 3 min - Uploaded by HISTORY Historian Matthew Pinkser explains the series of debates that would eventually help Abraham To celebrate the 150th anniversary of the most famous political argument in U.S. history, The Lincoln-Douglas Debates of 1858 is now available in a special edition. Historians have traditionally regarded the series of seven debates between Stephen A. Douglas and Abraham Lincoln during the 1858 Illinois state election. The Lincoln-Douglas debates remain our culture's model of what public debate ought to be. This new edition of the complete transcripts of the debates and